

ABSTRACT

A system combining features of affinity and/or preference matching, location services, wireless devices, and security to provide users with controllable ability to rendezvous or track based upon user-defined interests or characteristics. Security features may include multiple levels of user-selected security and identification of users by a variety of means, including biometrics and image recognition.